WORTH MAY STRIKE OIL

Thousands of Acres Have Been Leased Along Drainage Canal and Drilling Will Be Started Soon

The country north of Orland and in fact the whole Worth territory is all agog over the big news which has swept that country that oil prospectors believe that oil abounds in the valley along the drainage canal. The Thomas Steinhausen Co., who have taken a big interest in this section since oil experts stated their belief that oil exists here in paying quantities, have shown their faith in the prospect by taking up the matter of carrying on drilling operations. It is understood that a driller from Indiana, said to be the same one who had been working on the abandoned Mokena oil well has been engaged to sink the first test well in Worth.

In an interview with Peter Lucas who has leased his farm for a period of 18 months for oil prospecting purposes, said in an interview with THE NEWS-BULLETIN that 10,000 acres have been leased, the lease terms running from 18 months to 5 years. No one has been asked to buy any shares as the company who will sink the well or wells will pay all parties from whom they have leased lands at the rate of about 12 1/2 percent or in other words they will give every 8th barrel of oil to the land owner.

Everyone in this section has high hopes that oil will be struck as it will mean a big boom for this entire region. All the farmers will be thinking of sinking oil wells instead of following agricultural pursuits if "oil struck". It is said that the wells will be sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet but it is expected that oil will be found at a much lesser depth.

At the time when the drainage canal was built much shale rock was discovered and it is declared that wherever this kind of rock is found there is also a good possibility of striking oil.

Orland, Worth and the whole adjacent country would find themselves in a big oil boom if paying wells should be struck. This would mean the upbuilding of this entire territory and would raise property values enormously. It is hoped that such good luck will come to this territory.

A beautiful wedding took place Wednesday January 25th when Miss Luella Beagley, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beagley of Orland, and Immanuel Marti, only son of Mrs. Nicholas Marti of Mokena, were united in marriage at the bride's home.

Neumeyer, pastor of the Orland Methodist church, followed by the bride leaning on the arm of her father who gave her away in marriage, Rev. Neumeyer pronouncing the words which made them man and wife. The double ring ceremony being used, the little niece of the bride, Francis Megarry of Frankfort carrying the rings, who was picturesque in white veil.

SPANISH DOUBLOONS

TREASURE ISLAND.

Well, here's a new kind of "Treasure Island"—a kind that Stevenson himself would chuckle over, could he come back to read it. And by a woman, too! So, as you may easily imagine, it's different from the rank and file of the many stories about treasure islands.

Just the same, it's a real treasure island story—an uninhabited island, adventures, mystery, treachery, violence and Spanish doubloons. And this time, for good measure, love and romance and humor are thrown in.

The author, Camilla Kenyon, was born in San Francisco, with a legend of a buccanier ancestor in the family. She says she sometimes thinks the old rover's soul may have got by mistake into her earthly frame. Anyway, she always has doted on sea tales of adventure—and now she has written one of her own that's better reading than most of those she has read.

Yes; it's sure different—the red-headed heroine tells the story herself! An interesting young person with a yarn that will keep you reading far beyond bedtime.

CHAPTER I.

An Aunt Errand.

Never had life seemed more fair and smiling than at the moment when Aunt Jane's letter descended upon me like a bolt from the blue. The fact is, I was taking a vacation from Aunt Jane. Being an orphan, I was supposed to be under Aunt Jane's wing, but this was the merest polite fiction, and I am sure that no hen with one chicken worries about it more than I did about Aunt Jane. I had spent the last three years, since Aunt Susan died and left Aunt Jane with all the money and no one to look after but me, in snatching her from the brink of disaster. Her most recent and narrow escape was from a velvet-tongued person of half her years who turned out to be a convict on parole. She had her handbag packed for the

at the end and reading backward—Aunt Jane's letters are usually most intelligible that way—you managed to piece together some explanation of this Miss Higgleby-Browne and her place in the scheme of things. It was through Miss Browne, whom she had met at a lecture upon Soul-Development, that Aunt Jane had come to realize her claims as an individual upon the Cosmos, also to discover that she was by nature a woman of affairs with a talent for directing large enterprises, although adverse influences had hitherto kept her from recognizing her powers. There was a dark significance in these "adverse influences," though whether they meant me or the family lawyer I was not sure.

Miss Higgleby-Browne, however, had assisted Aunt Jane to find herself, and as a consequence Aunt Jane, for the comparatively trifling outlay needful to finance the Harding-Browne expedition, would shortly be the richer by one-fourth of a vast treasure of Spanish doubloons. The knowledge of this hoard was Miss Higgleby-Browne's alone. It had been revealed to her by a dying sailor in a London hospital, whither she had gone on a mission of kindness—you gathered that Miss Browne was precisely the sort to take advantage when people were helpless and unable to fly from her. Why the dying sailor chose to make Miss Browne the repository of his secret, I don't know—this still remains for me the unsolved mystery. But when the sailor closed his eyes there was a map—had become Miss Higgleby-Browne's.

Miss Browne now had clear before her the road to fortune, but unfortunately it led across the sea and quite out of the route of steamer travel. Capital in excess of Miss Browne's resources was required. London proving cold before its great opportunity, Miss Browne had shaken off its dust and come to New York, where a mysteriously potent influence had guided her to Aunt Jane. Through Miss

"I Must Get to Panama in Time to Save Her."

Browne's great organizing abilities, not to speak of those newly brought to light in Aunt Jane, a party of stanch comrades had been assembled, a steamer engaged to meet them at Panama, and it was ho, for the island in the blue Pacific main!

With this lyrical outburst Aunt Jane concluded the body of her letter. A small cramped postscript informed me that it was against Miss H.B.'s wishes that she revealed their plans to anyone, but that she did want to hear from me before they sailed from Panama, where a letter might reach her if I was prompt.

"And of course," I explained to Bess as I hurried things into my bags, "if a letter can reach her so can I. At least I must take the chance of it. What those people are up to I don't know—probably they mean to hold her for ransom and murder her outright if it is not forthcoming. Or perhaps some of them will marry her and share the spoils with Miss Higgleby-Browne. Anyway, I must get to Panama in time to save her."

"Or you might go along to the island," suggested Bess.

I paused to glare at her.

"Bess! And let them murder me, too?"

"Or marry you—" cooed Bess.

One month later I was climbing out of a lumbering hack before the Tivoli hotel, which rises square and white and imposing on the low green height above the old Spanish city of Panama. In spite of the melting tropical heat there was a chill fear at my heart, the fear that Aunt Jane and her band of treasure-seekers had already departed on their quest.

I crossed the broad gallery and plunged into the cool dimness of the lobby in the wake of the bellboys who, discerning a helpless prey, had swooped en masse upon my bags.

"Miss Jane Harding?" repeated the clerk, and at the cool negation of his tone my heart gave a sickening downward swoop. "Miss Jane Harding and party have left the hotel!"

"For—the island?" I gasped.

He raised his eyebrows. "Can't say, I'm sure." He gave me an appraising stare. Perhaps the woe in my face touched him, for he descended from the eminence of the hotel clerk where he dwelt apart sufficiently to add, "Is it important that you should see her?"

"I am her niece. I have come all the way from San Francisco expecting to join her here."

The clerk meditated, his shrewd eyes piercing the very secrets of my soul.

"She knew nothing about it," I hastened to add. "I intended it for a surprise."

This candor helped my cause. "Well," he said, "that explains her not leaving any word. As you are her niece, I suppose it will do no harm to tell you that Miss Harding and her party embarked this morning on the freighter Rufus Smith, and I think it very likely that the steamer has not left port. If you like I will send a man to the water-front with you and you may be able to go on board and have a talk with your aunt."

Did I thank him? I have often wondered when I waked up in the night. I have a vision of myself dashing out of the hotel, and then the hack that brought me is bearing me away. Bellboys hurried my bags in after me, and I threw them largest recklessly. Madly we clattered over cobbled ways. Out on the smooth waters of the roadstead lay ships great and small, ships with striped masts and smokeless funnels, others with faint gray spirals wreathing upward from their stacks. Was one of these the Rufus Smith, and would I reach her—or him—before the thin gray feather became a thick black plume? I thought of my aunt at the mercy of these unknown adventurers with whom she had set forth, helpless as a little fat pigeon among hawks, and I felt, desperately, that I must reach her, must save her from them and bring her safe back to shore. How I was to do this at the eleventh hour, I did not know.

me that once in my clutches Aunt Jane would offer about as much resistance as a slightly melted wax doll. She gets so soft that you are almost afraid to touch her for fear of leaving dents.

So to get there, get there, get there, was the one prayer of my soul.

I got there, in a boat hastily commandeered by the hotel clerk's deputy. We brought up under the side of the little steamer, and the wide surprised face of a Swedish deck-hand stared down at us.

"Let me aboard! I must come aboard," I cried.

Other faces appeared, then a rope-ladder. Somehow I was mounting it—a dizzy feat to which only the tumult of my emotions made me indifferent. Bare brawny arms of sailors clutched at me and drew me to the deck. There at once I was the center of a circle of speechless and astonished persons, all men but one.

"Well!" demanded a large breezy voice. "What's this mean? What do you want aboard my ship?"

I looked up at a red-faced man in a large straw hat.

"I want my aunt," I explained.

"Your aunt?" he roared. "Why the devil should you think I've got your aunt?"

"You have got her," I replied with firmness. "I don't see her, but she's here somewhere."

The captain of the Rufus Smith shook two large red fists above his head.

"Another lunatic!" he shouted. "I'd as soon have a white horse and a minister aboard as go to sea in a floating bedlam!"

As the captain's angry thunder died away came the small, anxious voice of Aunt Jane.

"What's the matter? Oh, please tell me what's the matter!" she was saying as she edged her way into the group. Her eyes, round, pale, blinking a little in the tropical glare, roved over the circle until they lit on me. Right where she stood Aunt Jane petrified. Her poor little chin dropped until it disappeared altogether in the folds of her plump neck, and she remained speechless, stricken, immobile as a wax figure in an exhibition.

"Aunt Jane," I said, "you must come right back to shore with me." I spoke calmly, for unless you are perfectly calm with Aunt Jane you fluster her.

She replied only by a slight gobbling in her throat, but the other woman spoke in a loud voice, addressed not to me but to the universe in general.

"The Young Person is mad!" It was an unmistakably British intonation.

"Anybody that ain't goin' in that direction is welcome to jump overboard."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

GROUSE AND BROWNIE

"I have snowshoes in the winter. That is why I do not fall down into the snow banks," said the Ruffed Grouse, in answer to the question Billie Brownie had asked of him.

"I haven't the same kind of snowshoes that every one has, but that doesn't mean that they are not snowshoes all the same," said the Ruffed Grouse.

"Of course not," said Billie Brownie. "Snowshoes are shoes for the snow and you don't have to wear the same kind as every one else by any manner of means."

"The kind of snowshoes that I like and wear," said the Ruffed Grouse, "are the kind you now see. I wear quills on my feet in the winter time, which I don't wear at other times of the year."

"I do not sink down into the snow. I stay up on top. That is important when a creature likes to go out in the winter time."

"To be sure, there are plenty of creatures who do not care about being around in the winter time."

"They would rather sleep then, but I cannot understand it."

"Why a creature would want to sleep his time away like that is beyond me. A Ruffed Grouse simply cannot understand it!"

"There are plenty who do like to sleep all winter. The Woodchuck is a lazy one. He likes to sleep. And what a sound sleeper he is."

"The toads and frogs and so many others like to sleep, but not Mr. Ruffed Grouse. No, no indeed."

"I don't see why creatures want to sleep all the winter," said Billie Brownie, "but then of course it is often hard to understand why others want to do certain things and why they do not want to do other things."

"I love the winter time but then of course you know I belong to Peter Gnome's Every-Day-Is-Nice Club."

"What's that?" asked Grouse.

"That is a club where we all obey the rule of never grumbling about the weather."

"We enjoy each day as it comes along and we find that there is always plenty of fun to be had on every day, whether it snows or rains or whether the sun shines."

"Of course I don't mean that we are always playing out-of-doors. Sometimes we go to Witty Witch's cave or to old Mr. Giant's cave and we hear stories and have delicious hot suppers."

"But we never grumble about the weather. You know, creatures often do that without going out-of-doors."

"I love the snow," said the Ruffed Grouse.

"I shall tell that to Madame Snow. She will be much pleased by the compliment."

"She loves it when creatures like her and admire her lovely gowns."

"She always wears white, of course. She loves it better than anything else. She doesn't like it when her frocks and gowns become soiled as sometimes happens."

"Prince Snow often brings a new supply of whiteness for her gowns, though. That pleases her so much."

"I made up a song about the snow the other day," Billie Brownie continued, "and I wonder if you would like to hear it."

"Immensely," said the Ruffed Grouse. "I'm not much on poetry myself. I never could write any and I never read any, but that doesn't mean that I don't want to hear it."

"I'd be much pleased to hear your poem," Billie Brownie said. "It would be especially nice to feel that I was hearing a poem which you made up yourself. I feel it would be an honor to hear a poem of your own invention, or of your 'A New Supply.' own composition, or whatever else one would call it."

"Do recite it for me, Billie Brownie."

So Billie Brownie recited for the Ruffed Grouse this poem:

"Oh the snow, the snow is so soft and so white,

It's nice in the daytime, it's lovely at night.

"It glistens and glistens and sparkles as well,

"This is all just now I have to tell."

"I'm not much of a judge of poetry but I fancy that is all right," said the Ruffed Grouse.

"It's as well you're not much of a judge of poetry," laughed Billie Brownie merrily.

If one is 25 per cent unselfish, he's probably normal.

If you would be happy scatter happiness.

Many ambitious men and women live only half a life—and don't know it

No person whose nerves are continually irritated, whose appetite and digestion are disturbed, or who doesn't sleep well has more than half his normal chance for success in life. For weakness, debility, anemia and general lack of tone are a serious handicap to anybody.

Those who drink tea or coffee are often sufferers from these conditions. Tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance which has a decided stimulant action on the nerves and brain cells.

Each cup of strong coffee contains about as large a dose of caffeine as your doctor would ordinarily give to a very sick person.

You can readily see that the effect of giving this stimulant regularly to a well person might finally have a tendency to make him sick.

If you want to avoid a very common cause of irritation and enjoy restful sleep, good digestion, and all the feeling of vigor and robust endurance that comes to healthy, normal people, quit tea and coffee, and drink Postum, instead. It is a rich, coffee-like cereal beverage—perfectly delicious!

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, aromatic beverage and see how much better you'll feel—able to do more without becoming fatigued—as thousands have discovered for themselves.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

New Tariff Plan Would Help Our Debtors To Pay

Government Expert Shows How American Valuation Would Remove Unfair Customs Discrimination.

Under the American valuation plan, as proposed in the Fordney Tariff bill, an equalizing effect upon the commerce of the United States with all nations with which we trade would be one of the first and most desirable results, according to William Burgess, member of the United States Tariff Commission.

A similar article sold in Japan at 50 cents, in Germany at 60 cents, in England for $1, under the present foreign valuation plan means, at a tariff rate of 50 per cent, that Japan would have to pay 25 cents in duty, Germany 30 cents and England 50 cents. Under the proposed American valuation, Mr. Burgess points out that the importation of this article would cause each of the exporting countries to pay exactly the same amount of duty, regardless of cost of production.

Thus, he shows, the present discrimination in favor of low-cost countries would be removed. This also would result in helping our debtor nations to pay their debts to us. Our debtor nations are Great Britain, France and Italy.

"How are we going to help these nations to pay their debts by charging them a greater amount of duty than we charge Germany and Japan?" Mr. Burgess asks.

Certain large importers and dealers in the United States, who profit on imported merchandise, think that they can make on our goods, are the real opponents of the American valuation plan, the tariff expert declares.

He answers the argument that American manufacturers could raise their prices so as to compel importers to pay a higher amount of duty by citing the following example:

Assuming a foreign article to be worth 70 cents and the American article is selling at $1, it would require 30% of the American selling price to equalize the difference between the foreign and domestic values. Now, if the American manufacturer raises his price to $1.25, 30% duty on this value would be 37½ cents, the foreign value remaining at 70 cents, the landed cost would be 70 cents plus 37½ cents, which gives the foreign article the advantage of 18½ cents in this market. The American valuation plan places an automatic check on American manufacturers doing this very thing.

Mr. Burgess disputes estimates of increased selling prices of commodities.

Member United States Tariff Commission

Under the proposed American valuation plan, the tariff expert declares, the importation of this article would cause each of the exporting countries to pay exactly the same amount of duty, regardless of cost of production. Thus, he shows, the present discrimination in favor of low-cost countries would be removed. This also would result in helping our debtor nations to pay their debts to us. Our debtor nations are Great Britain, France and Italy.

The question, Mr. Burgess concludes, is simply whether customs duties shall continue to be assessed upon the foreign market value of goods or upon the value in the United States, and asks whether it is easier to obtain information upon their value from over 110 different foreign countries of exportation, with no legal power to secure such values, than it is to get this information in America, with the full power of the Government to compel such information.

MODERN DAY MIRACLES

How Twentieth Century Scientists
Magi's Lamp and the Age-Old Dream of Alchemy Come True

(Told in Eight Sketches)
By JOHN RAYMOND

No. I THE AGE OF CHEMISTRY

Within the last few years the world has been electrified by the vast strides made in the field of science by the creative chemist. Indeed, within a generation the influence exerted upon the entire fabric of our civilization from within the laboratory has been so enormous that we are prepared at last to accept the oft-repeated statement that we have passed beyond the age of machinery and have entered into the more mysterious age of chemistry.

What this new era is to bring forth in the way of scientific discovery rests upon conjecture, but certainly, the miracles performed in the last half century have been sufficient to warrant almost any expectancy.

America has heard that Germany's chemists saved her from an early disastrous defeat, both in the field and in the matter of obtaining supplies. Without the tremendous expansion of her plants for the production of nitrates and ammonia from the air by processes developed by her great chemists the war, without question, would have ended years before it did, as a result of the exhaustion of Germany's explosives, if not from the exhaustion of her food supplies because of the lack of fertilizer for her fields. So great, in fact, have been the accomplishments in the last few years that scientists now declare that a nation without applied chemistry will be "defenseless in war and lagging in peace."

Previously unheard of scientific feats have been reported from the laboratory, but because of necessity, they were performed so quietly they were robbed of their glamor and their trappings of romance while lesser achievements on the field of battle and in the council chambers of diplomats have been hailed by throngs.

Those of us who have left the classroom and the study hall behind find it difficult, lacking technical knowledge, to comprehend this swift transition from one era to another, an amazing period when the nations of the world are making serious plans to scrap their worthless armies and navies, depending for protection entirely upon the subtle but deadly agencies developed secretly in chemical laboratories. We who are not chemists hear strange tales these days, no less strange because they are true, of rubies and amber, ornaments of ivory, shimmering silks, colors of every hue, and exotic perfumes—once the precious cargo of desert caravans—produced from a substance as ordinary as coal tar.

Truly, chemistry has descended into the depths of the earth and extracted the secret formula of nature. The modern researcher, by constant diligence and untiring effort, has performed the mysteries which kept the alchemist of other centuries groping in the dark and branded him as one allied with the devil himself. The researcher, in finding in coal tar, not only things of beauty, but remedies for most human ills, has outdone the alchemist by transforming a base substance into something far more precious than gold.

From this black, sticky mass he adorns himself with colors rivaling nature itself in their barbaic splendor. He distills perfumes that equal the jasmine and he makes terrifying gases that one day will make war unthinkable. Thousands of articles upon which we depend, from TNT to paving blocks, from steel of roses to fertilizer, and from illumination gas to royal purple, are derived from the same substance.

As recently as 1700 a man who dared to say that he could produce a ruby from a lump of coal would have been accused of practicing the black art and doubtless would have ended his career at the stake. In three centuries we have gone far. To-day we accept these miracles by a few of us know how the miracles are wrought. And yet there is no mystery.

The succeeding sketches will show how the accidental discovery of an English boy at work in a laboratory in 1850 started the development of creative chemistry, and will tell how it is possible to produce a silk purse, a bottle of perfume, the colors of the rainbow, a variety of medicines, food-stuffs and poisons, all from the same material.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

Making Good an Old Boast.

A process has been discovered whereby old leather can be converted into gelatin. Such transformation offers a ready way of utilizing many articles after their value to every one but the junk man appears to be gone. Since head coverings are sometimes made of leather, it would appear that at least the man confident that his candidate will win in an election may literally back up his confidence with the time-honored promise that he will eat his hat in the event that his man loses.

BOY SCOUTS

SERVE SONS OF VETERANS

During the five days of the Confederate Veterans' reunion, held at Chattanooga, boy scouts were on duty daily from 18 to 20 hours a day, meeting trains, acting as guides and messengers, serving sandwiches and coffee, helping manage traffic as well as other small and big offices in behalf of the veterans, who were loud in their praise of their young friends' work.

The following resolution was passed by the Sons of Confederate Veterans in assembly:

"Resolved, by the Sons of Confederate Veterans that a special vote of thanks be extended to the boy scouts of the city of Chattanooga for the magnificent manner in which they have discharged their duties during the reunion, and by their untiring efforts in behalf of the veterans of their city have shown plainly to all the people attending this reunion that they are worthy sons of worthy sires, and that they will keep up the spirit that has made the South famous in song and story."

W. N. Hudeburg, chairman of the reunion committee, remarked that if he had to name any one factor that deserved more mention than any others toward making the reunion a success he would name "that wonderful organization, the boy scouts."

WHEN BOY SCOUT IS HURT

Practically Every Boy Scout Has the Ability to Render First Aid When Necessary.

A DIFFERENT WAY

In commenting on the service rendered by scouts at the American Legion convention at Kansas City, Herbert Corey, a journalist, makes this interesting comparison:

"Time was when a kid was more or less of a nuisance around such a gathering as this. He was either in the hall, under everyone's feet, because he wanted to see, or being barred from the hall, he clustered in windows and looked through doors and saw anyhow. He had no more reverence for authority than an Eskimo has for the Grand Lama. He was engaged in learning something of this world he lives in, and he was learning in the time-honored way in which boys have learned—by being a terrible trial to his elders and by not being discouraged."

"The boy scout way has been a different way. All that energy and perseverance and courage that every proper kid displays as a matter of course in the current of his daily life has been turned to good account. Instead of being a nuisance, he has been made into a help. He has been taught to see the dignity and honor of service, too, so that no honorable task seems menial to him, and no obstacle is ever permitted to hold him back. If the Legion—valuing Americanism as it does and was shown by the resolutions adopted—does not take these boys into full fellowship of spirit—strike out that if. The boys are already in."

A HARDING TROOP.

Troop number 12 of Kewanee, Ill., has been reorganized and is now known as the Harding troop. On organizing, the scout scribe wrote to President Harding asking for an autographed photograph if he cared to send one to the troop that was named after him. The President "came across" and the troop is now the proud possessor of a large photograph which bears the inscription "With Salutations to Harding Troop, Boy Scouts, Warren G. Harding."

Help Your Kidneys Fight That Cold!

Winter Colds and Chills Weaken the Kidneys and Are the Direct Cause of Many Serious Kidney Disorders

Is winter-time your backache-time? Does every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder then, that every cold finds you suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

But don't worry! Simply realize that your kidneys are overworked at such times and need assistance. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills today and give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them also by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly, and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Kidney Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

J. R. JOHNSON, Prop. Auto Top Repair and Furniture Upholstering Shop, 318 West Williams St., Danville, Ill., says: "I had a cold that settled on my kidneys, disordering them and making my back lame and sore. I could hardly bend at all. The irregular passage of the kidney secretions at night broke my rest. I found Doan's Kidney Pills just the remedy to help the trouble and regulate my kidneys. The weak, sore feeling left my back and the relief has been permanent."

MRS. FRANK GANLEY, DeMay St., Harbor Beach, Mich., says: "I had a lame back and irregular kidney action, brought on by a cold settling in my kidneys. My back was heavy and tired, which made me feel draggy and played out without a bit of ambition. At night my back bothered me so much I was restless and felt tired on getting up mornings. Dizzy spells would come over me and black specks darted before me. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and after using one box I was relieved."

Smack That Child.

A mother was reproving her little six-year-old girl for being naughty.

"If you are so tiresome and disagreeable," she said, "you will not be loved, and when you grow up your friends will be few."

The child replied at once:

"I shall not want any friends, for I shall get married."

"Oh, no," replied mother, "you will not get married if you are disagreeable, for gentlemen are particular."

After a short pause, the little girl remarked:

"Well, mummy, I don't think daddy was particular."

Some days later Lois, while playing, was overheard to say to an imaginary caller at the door:

"No; my husband cannot see you today; he is very much decomposed!"

How about the Law of Common Sense and the man who has committed an error only? Isn't this a good place to use the benefit of the doubt, too?

Take your own case: If you don't know for sure whether tea or coffee is harming you, you do know that many are harmed by the drug element in tea and coffee, and that headaches, nervousness, or high blood pressure are symptoms which often tell that the drug, caffeine, is giving the nervous system too much jolt.

Probably you know, too, that some people can't drink a cup of tea or coffee at bed-time, and sleep well that night.

Where many have been harmed by tea and coffee, and you may be harmed, isn't it well to put the benefit of the doubt on your side before doubt becomes an unpleasant certainty?

There's charm without harm in Postum—a pure cereal beverage, rich in flavor, fully satisfying; the favorite table drink of thousands.

Bona Fide Red-Headed League. Sherlock Holmes tells in one of his stories of the Red-headed league—the device by which one of his villains got a clerk temporarily out of the way in order to carry out his schemes against a bank. At Baltimore a red-headed league has just been founded without any sinister purpose. The students of Goucher (women's) college in that city have organized a society of which any man, woman, or child in the United States is eligible who can certify that he or she has genuine red hair. The membership fees—$1 for women and $2 for men—will go towards the erection of a building of red brick on a new site that the college has obtained in a Baltimore suburb.

The Titian Tints—whose president is Miss Ruth Wallace, a daughter of the secretary of agriculture in Mr. Harding's cabinet—have issued a clever and witty leaflet extolling the virtues of red hair.

Bear Cubs Born in Captivity

They look rather like a pair of bull pups as they sprawl weakly on the table in front of their owner, but they are that very rare thing, bear cubs born in captivity. And, also, they are hybrid 2—mother having been a Siberian and their father an American bear. The cubs were a complete surprise to everyone but Mrs. Bear, and her owner, a Swiss named Adde Faron, named them "Soudaine" (All of a Sudden) and "Imprevu" (Unexpected).

This Should Discourage Bandits

A new invention has been made which fools the bank robber. When the robber steps in front of the teller's window and demands that he throw up his hands, with a pressure of his foot the teller causes a curtain of steel to separate him from the bandit, at the same time spraying the latter's face with a chemical which temporarily blinds him.

Deputy sheriffs and posses are scouring Peoria county for six desperate prisoners who broke jail at Peoria. Its ranks thinned by death, the historical Grand Army of the Republic post at Kewanee, known as Julius A. Pratt post, No. 143, was formally mustered out. A statewide referendum on light wines and beer is planned by a group of Chicagoans who are organizing a force of workers to go into every county in the state for the necessary signatures to put the question before the voters next November. To get the matter before voters in the form of a public policy question it will be necessary to file with the secretary of state a petition signed by 10 per cent of the voters who voted at the last general election. Such a petition will require about 210,000 signatures.

Illinois farmers planted three per cent more acreage in wheat in the fall of 1921 compared with the revised wheat acreage of 1920, according to S. D. WHAT THE CHILDREN WANTED

One Might Think It Was Not Altogether Miss Willet's Golden Voice That Entranced Them.

An entertainment was being given in the village school. When the program was half over the faces of the scholars shone with agreeable anticipation, for the next item was to be a vocal solo by Miss Willet, who on many occasions had delighted the school with her singing.

Finally the chairman made the announcement: "I am very sorry to say, children, that Miss Willet has contracted a cold and will be unable to sing. She is willing, however, to recite a poem instead if you wish to hear it. Do you?" Several heads in the rear of the room became grouped as if in earnest conversation. Then they evidently elected a spokesman. "Please, sir," said the boy, "if Miss Willet don't mind, we'd rather have her get up and try to sing; and if her throat's too sore to make a noise she can make her funny faces while the pianist plays the tune."—London Tit-Bits.

Attack Premature. "Why did you strike this haberdasher's clerk?"

"Your honor," said the large, uncouth person, "he showed me a collar and said it was a 'perfect dear.'"

"Well," snorted the judge, "what did you hit him in the store for? Couldn't you wait until after closing time and catch him in an alley?"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Garcia's Method. Mesdames Viardot-Garcia and Mall-bran, the wonderful daughters of Manuel Garcia, who was perhaps the greatest vocal teacher of all time, literally "learned in suffering what they taught in song."

The discipline of the Garcia home was extremely severe. It was said that Garcia used to beat his daughters till they screamed.

The neighbors, however, did not confuse method with madness, and on such occasions they quaintly said: "It is only Monsieur Garcia teaching his girls to sing."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Clear Case. "I don't take prohibition cases," said the lawyer.

"But I'm an innocent man, I tell you. I'm charged with having liquor in my possession, but I'm the person who called up the police department and stated that I had found twenty-four quarts of Scotch buried in my backyard."

"You say you called up the police and let them carry off that Scotch when you might have concealed it in a hundred different places and defied the true owner to get possession of it?"

"Certainly." "Well, you must be innocent. I'll engage to defend you."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

She Did. Mr. Saphead—"Do you ever think of me?" Miss Kutting—"Yes; but I'd hate to tell you what."—Judge.

You wouldn't put on hobbles to run a foot race

Then why load up on handicaps for the day's work?

A good deal of food, unwisely chosen, does weigh the body down and clog the digestion, and dull the brain.

Why put on the hobbles?

Grape-Nuts is a breakfast or lunch-time dish for those who want food efficiency, and mind and body efficiency.

Grape-Nuts satisfies and nourishes. It delights the taste. It is ready to serve whenever you are ready to eat. And it digests easily, quickly and completely—leaving no handicap of heaviness and drowsiness.

Grape-Nuts is the food for health and action.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter."—Mrs. W. S. HUGHES, Greenville, Delaware.

Mothers and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it has done for others. For nearly fifty years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and women, young and old, recommending the Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In your own neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it?

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE EARLY MORNING

THERE is an invisible, inspiring force in the early morning air, drifting down from the hills, sweet with the incense of the dawn, which vitalizes everything it touches, from the sod and the sea to the souls of humans.

It is the birth of a new day, opening its eyes like a new-born child to a new world. Every atom, every sphere and every creature is facing a threshold that has never been crossed.

The old quiverfuls of arrows have been shot away.

Time is handing out another supply, selecting the sharpest and strongest for the hardy band of youth, and urging youth to do its best, pointing to the dazzling paths that lead up and up to Arcadia.

Are you, young man and young woman, giving proper heed to Time's friendly admonitions?

Do you in the early morning of your life realize the blessed privileges that are yours?

Do you comprehend that this is the hour in which you must begin your march over the hills by every bowery road, toward a loftier peak, which in your delightful dreams you are picturing of wealth, and power and fame?

If you do, gird your quiver securely, look carefully about you and march on to the uplands nearer heaven, holding firmly all the while to faith and hope and honor, as you go.

Let not the lure of the valleys, the shade of the trees nor the purring waters call you back, when the sun approaches the meridian, and the day waxes warm and drowsy.

And at high noon, when the inclination comes to seek relaxation, and to side-step into fields of idle amusements, mind that you do not slip and go tumbling down among the failures.

If such desire confront you, summon all your resolution, all the fine virtues that within you lie, and face the way to Arcadia, though the outlines of the golden domes of the city do not yet appear.

At this moment, you are at the turning point, when a single deviation from high resolve, a step or two from the course you have been so faithfully pursuing, may ruin your career and blast your fondest hopes.

By passing the noontime of life in safety, you will soon come upon an easier path, and find no difficulty in wending your way homeward, where the ring and the fatted calf will be found waiting for you, with the glad smiles of loving friends.

MY PRAYER

GOD, for the gladness of this day,
Grateful, I come tonight.
Through all the days to come,
Dear Lord,
Guide Thou my steps aright.

I thank Thee, God, for health and friends,
And strength to work with cheer;
Grant me refreshing sleep this night,
Free from all care and fear.

And may I awaken calmed, renewed,
And ready for the day;
Whether of sorrow or of joy,
Help me to keep Thy way.

Grant, Father, purity of heart,
And courage for the right;
Grant me the gift of cheer alway,
And favor in Thy sight.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"TAMMANY"

WHEN political reports state that such-and-such a person is the "Tammany candidate" or that "the Tammany organization is back of a certain move," the expression is understood to refer to a prominent organization in New York—but the fact that it receives its name from a noted Indian chief is overlooked.

Tamanend, the chief in question, was the ancient, wise and friendly head of the Delaware tribe of Indians who, for want of a better candidate, was "canonized" by the soldiers of the American Revolution as the patron saint of the new country. The Tammany organization dates from May 12, 1789, when it was formed for benevolent and social purposes, but eventually became an important political body, formally chartered in 1805 and opposing the so-called "aristocratic" Society of the Cincinnati. It was essentially anti-federalist or democratic in its character and its chief founder was William Mooney, an American upholsterer of Irish extraction. The grand sachem and the thirteen sachems typified the president and the governors of the thirteen original colonies.

The Tammany Society today is a charitable and social organization, entirely distinct from the general committee of the Tammany political body, which cannot use Tammany hall without the consent of the society.

SCHOOL DAYS

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

IF YOU DON'T KNOW—

IF YOU don't happen to know how to spell a word, consult the dictionary. The effort you make turning over the pages and hunting out the word will probably fix the spelling in your mind.

Ask some boy how it is spelled, and you will almost instantly forget it. Then next time you need to use the same word, you will have to ask again.

Any form of knowledge, if it is to remain with you, must be got with some effort.

The child whose parents answer all his questions as he is studying his lesson books usually fails in examinations, where there are no parents to ask.

If he had been compelled to look up the answers he would have remembered them.

If there is no other way to get information than by asking questions, ask them.

You could not, for example, find out a man's name without asking. But you could find his place of residence and his telephone number, and his business, by looking him up. And if necessary for you to know these things, that would be the only sensible way of learning them.

In the study of languages, pronunciation and idiom can be learned of teachers. But the grammar and the vocabulary must be dug out of books with painful effort. If you tried to learn vocabularies by asking the meaning of words you would make little progress in the language.

Ask questions when you have to, but remember that you are pretty sure to overestimate the number of times when this is necessary.

Remember, too, that in gaining knowledge in this way you take chances on other people's mistakes.

The safest and surest way is to go straight to the printed authority, study the answer to your question, reason out for yourself why it should be the answer, and then think it over a couple of times after that.

The kind of an education you get for yourself is like the kind of a fortune a man gets for himself. You know what it is worth, how hard it was to acquire, and you are very likely to keep it.

lemon and vanilla. This makes 40 small cakes.

YOUR HAND

How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies—The Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm.

THE FINGER NAILS

THERE is much that can be gained from a detailed study of the finger nails, nature's protection for the tips of the fingers. In fact, in ancient times certain soothsayers professed to be able to read a person's entire past, present and future from a study of the finger nails.

If the nails are short, broad rather than long, and the skin grows far up on them, you may read in them a strong personality, but with a tendency toward too much criticism of others. The possessor will seek to dominate and control in circumstances affecting himself and his surroundings. He will be, often, a person hard to get along with. The type has its good points, of course; among them are order and regularity. If the nails described occur on spatulate fingers—that is, fingers which broaden at the end or tip—and the thumb is short, the owner, man or woman, will have a passion for tidying up, arranging and rearranging his or her surroundings, seeking always to attain the perfecting of orderliness.

TINLEY PARK

A special meeting of the voting members of Trinity Lutheran church will be held next Sunday afternoon, January 29, at 2 o'clock. The revised constitution will be adopted, and the plans and recommendations of the trustees regarding repairs, improvements will be heard.

Mr. Albert Zebell, father of Mrs. Wm. Greve, shipped two carloads of steers from Plato, Minnesota, to the stockyards in Chicago, spent a few days at the home of Rev. Wm. Greve and renewed acquaintances. Although the venture was not a financial success, Mr. Zebell enjoyed the visit and will probably make the trip again if an opportunity presents itself.

MOKENA

A pure bred Chester White hog sale will be held on February first at the Advance Stock Farm of which Steven Reunth is the proprietor. Mr. Reunth has the reputation of having some good material. His stock has taken many of the coveted prizes at the International show, and fair.

Mrs. McNeil of South Dakota is visiting at the James Cooper home.

MOKENA P. O. GETS SAVING CERTIFICATE ALLOTMENT FROM U. S.

The Mokena post office has received its allotment of U. S. government saving certificates. These certificates are issued by the U. S. Treasury department and any amount can be invested from $20 to $4,000. The new certificates yield 2 1/2 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually.

Money invested at this rate increases 25 per cent in five years. For every $20 invested this month, the Government will pay $25 in 5 years and for every $4,000 invested, the Government will pay $5,000.

Albert Hodell is very low. Herbert Moriarty, the genial Mokena auctioneer, is literally swamped with sale dates this winter. The month of February promises to be an exceptionally good month as Mr. Moriarty so far has a sale booked for nearly every day in the month. Mr. Moriarty has delivered the goods and thus "gets the dates." His services have been asked for in all parts of the county far outside of his own territory.

Type of Dog Wanted

Commerce of Dogville with which he was going to buy him a dog and asked him what kind he wanted he said: "I want one with a long tail, so when he's happy he can wag it."

Woods In Immense Quantities

On the north coast of Guatemala 60,000 tons of cohune nuts are said to be available for exportation annually, and with an expenditure of $10,000 for highway improvement this quantity could probably be increased to 100,000 tons per annum. On the Pacific or south coast the yield of coconuts is estimated, could easily be increased to 300,000 tons per annum. There is a supply of cheap labor in this southern region.

Insect Powder From Flowers

Insect powder, which is made by grinding the flower heads of certain species of pyrethrum contains a volatile oil which acts upon insects by asphyxiation. It is harmless to the higher animals, including man. The workmen who make it suffer no more inconvenience than do milliners or others engaged in dusty trades. The plants are fed to horses and other stock after the flowers have been gathered.

MILEAGE

Mileage is the "commodity" one purchases when buying a tire; not mere materials, but the service that certain materials will perform, when combined.

Greater mileage is assured in Hydro-Toron tires because processes and principles employed represent the industry's greatest forward steps. The Internal Hydraulic Expansion Process prevents defects from being built into the tire—concealed from sight.

The Toron (no-rot) chemical treatment of fabric gives greater tensile strength, greater holding power between layers, increased affinity for rubber and complete protection against the damaging effects of moisture.

Hydro-Toron tires are oversize—as big as cords, better than cords. Next time you are ready to buy tires, come in and let us show you the tire you have heard so much about.
